

Current Project

We have been experiencing one of the wettest winters in recent memory. Good site drainage is of the utmost importance in times like these. A large portion of the recent completion centered around directing the surface water where we wanted it to go. We used a combination of French drains and drain beds to handle all the surface runoff. The impressive visual impact of the finish product came from the intense artistic creativity used during construction. Team Naturescapes did a phenomenal job implementing the plan. The builder and the homeowner were fantastic to work with throughout the entire process. Many thanks to the whole team involved with this landscaping masterpiece!
